

PAINTING WITH SOUND

Exploring sound colours

Do you go shopping and come back with something that will be "ideal" for some project or display at school? Sometimes inspiration comes from the most odd sources!

These pictures have inspired music compositions on the sea, a busy street, and the park. Asking the children what they would hear if the pictures came to life, produces a wealth of sounds to represent on instruments or using the voice. By dividing the class into groups responsible for composing a 'sound bite', enables a class composition to emerge.

Where do these pictures come from? A book?
The internet?

No, it is simply a child's quilt cover -
£6.99 from the shop Big W!
There are some wonderful themes - make excellent backdrops to displays and inspire various artistic tendencies!

You may have spotted a gender issue, but you could always get the boys football version!

