

Sports West Youth Games 2004

Saturday 10 July 2004
University of Bath

“Promoting the value of sport to young people”

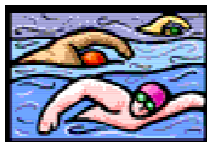

Over 800 children attended the day representing four local authorities: Bath and North East Somerset, Bristol, North Somerset and South Gloucestershire.

Phil De Glanville (Sport England) and Nicole O’Flaherty (Executive Member for Leisure, Bath and North East Somerset Council) declared the games officially open, participants then went off to their sports sites to start competitions at 11 am.

Ama Agbeze, England Netball player attended the day as an ambassador of the Sporting Champions Scheme. Sporting Champions is a Sport England initiative, which uses sports stars and emerging talent to inspire and motivate young people.

The largest sports event at the games was hockey with 4 categories and over 160 competitors.

Fund-raising activities took place throughout the day at the games to raise money for Sports Relief this included the Golden Mile Swim of 32 lengths in the Olympic sized 50m pool.

Event Co-ordinators said 'Many thanks go to the Event Staff, Sports Co-ordinators, Officials, volunteers and of course the competitors themselves'
